Houston Marriott Medical Center Hotel

Program Director: William W. Lunn, MD
Conference Coordinator: Anne N. Perch, MBA

NEEDS STATEMENT
Transbronchial needle aspiration (TBNA) biopsy is an extremely useful tool employed in the evaluation and management of patients with mediastinal lymphadenopathy. TBNA allows physicians to diagnose benign conditions and may also allow physicians to diagnose and stage malignant conditions, thereby avoiding unnecessary surgery. Unfortunately, many pulmonary physicians do not receive adequate training in TBNA during fellowship training, resulting in underutilization of the technique.

OBJECTIVES
At the conclusion of the course, the participant should be able to:
• Demonstrate a detailed knowledge of mediastinal anatomy
• Discuss the indications and contraindications of TBNA
• Demonstrate the proper technique of TBNA
• List the alternatives to TBNA
• Discuss the options of sample processing of TBNA specimens

EDUCATIONAL METHODS
Lectures • Syllabus • Question and Answer Session • Hands-On Instruction by Experts

TARGET AUDIENCE
Pulmonologists

EVALUATION
Evaluation by questionnaire will address program content, presentation, and possible bias.
